In Ferrol there are two important symbols: the town hall and Jofre theater.

- Ferrol's town hall

It was designed by the architectures Nemesio López Rodríguez and Vicente García Lastra in 1953. It is a Neoclassic building more focused on simplicity and harmony than on decorative ornaments.

- Jofre's theatre

Jofre's theatre is a building designed by Faustino Domínguez Coumes Gay. His inspiration were the Italian theatres. Its name comes from Joaquín Jofre y Maristany, who gave a significant quantity of money for the construction of the theatre. It was finished in 1892 and the first play performed was "El Alcalde de Zaramea" by Calderón de la Barca.
