ACTIVITY 2: READING

Madame Tussauds

If you go to Madame Tussauds in London, you can meet nearly four hundred famous people. You can stand next to them and touch them! However, they are not real. They are models and they are made of wax.

You can see politicians like Barack Obama, singers like Britney Spears and footballers like David Beckham. You can also see famous people from history like Albert Einstein the scientist, and Pablo Picasso the artist. Lots of people visit the models of Prince William and his wife Kate Middleton.

It takes about four months to make a Madame Tussauds model and it costs about £150,000! Usually, about twenty artists and sculptors work together to make the model. Some famous people give their clothes to Madame Tussauds for their models to wear.

The original Madame Tussauds is in London, but now you can see Madame Tussauds models in thirteen other cities around the world, including New York, Amsterdam and Bangkok.
