

1. Read.
Lee.

The screenshot shows an Internet Explorer browser window with the address bar displaying <http://www.google.com/>. The page title is LYNN'S PAGE. The main content is a survey titled "I've got a project about different schools in the world. Please help me." with five radio button questions:

- Where is your school?
- Have you got a big school?
- Has your school got a cafeteria?
- Have you got afternoon activities at your school?
- What is special or different about your school?

Below the survey is a "Thank you, Lynn" message and a photo of Lynn, a young woman with dark hair, wearing a floral top and a necklace.

There are three response boxes:

- Hi Lynn,
My school is in South Africa. It isn't big. We haven't got a cafeteria, but we have got a "tuck shop". We buy sweets and crisps and cold drinks there.
We have got swimming and gymnastics. We have got afternoon activities: tennis, football and rugby.
Andrea
- Hello Lynn,
My name is Ping! I'm from China. My school is very big. There are 16,000 students. The teachers have got microphones!
Ping
- Hi,
I am Rafik and I am from Egypt. I go to school in the afternoon. My school isn't big. We have got different activities: karate and football.
Rafik

The browser's status bar at the bottom shows "Internet zone".

2. Tick.
Pon un ✓.

Who ...	Andrea	Ping	Rafik
1. ... has got a big school?		✓
2. ... goes to school in the afternoon?
3. ... has got activities in the afternoon?
4. ... buys sweets at school?
5. ... has got swimming at school?			